

University honors Stephen Siegel

Stephen B. Siegel, CBRE's chairman of global brokerage, was recently honored with an honorary degree from Yeshiva University, recognizing the tremendous contributions and extraordinary leadership he has provided to the institution.

STEPHEN SIEGEL

Siegel established the Stephen B. Siegel Program in Real Estate Law at the Benjamin N. Cardozo School of Law in 1985, and the Charles and Ann Siegel Scholarship Fund at Cardozo in 2008.

He is a former member of the Cardozo Board of Overseers and remains an honorary member.

"It's an honor to be recognized by one of our city's most prestigious universities," said Siegel. "Yeshiva is dedicated to providing students with a unique and personal college

I'm very proud of our long-standing partnership."

The brokerage leader is widely regarded as one of New York's most talented and prolific real estate professionals.

In 2011, he was featured as a "Game-Changer" in the book Brokers Who Dominate: 8 Traits of Top Producers by Rod Santomassimo, and in Real Estate Forum as a "Legend & Icon" of real estate;

In 2005, he was featured in the Urban Land Institute's book, Leadership Legacies: Lessons Learned from Ten Real Estate Legends; and in 2004 he was honored with Commercial Property News' Lifetime Achievement Award and named by Crain's as one of the 100 most influential business leaders in New York City.

Siegel and his wife, Wendy are co-chairs of the National Jewish Medical and Research Center's Council of National Trustees and he contributes his time to several other organizations.

He was also the recipient of an honorary Doctorate of Laws from Monmouth University, as well as a Doctorate of Commercial Science from Baruch College and from St. Thomas Aquinas College.

The Hotel Engineers Association of New York (HEANY) held a seminar to educate members of the hotel industry on the Enforcement and Compliance with the New NYC Fire Safety Plan Requirements. Moderated by John E. Osborn, of John E. Osborn P.C., the program boasted the expertise of Joe Evangelista, FDNY Captain and director of the Emergency Planning for the Bureau of Fire Prevention; Harry Falik, security director at the St. Regis New York; Thomas Jensen, chief of fire prevention FDNY and; Ken Samuelsen, president Safety Planning Group.